It is essential to use proper tempo when defending a hand. A long hesitation can give away valuable information and playing too quickly can cost a trick. Finding this tempo comes with experience and new players sometimes have to learn the hard way.

BIDDING: I was sitting South and took a rosy view of the hand. Or better said, I simply overbid.

Play: West led the ten of clubs and I could see a likely loser in each suit. In fact, I would have to have some luck in the heart suit to keep my losers there to one. After quickly assessing the situation I saw that East was a new player and might fall for an old trick. I won the ace of clubs and dropped my queen. I then called for the eight of clubs, and as I had hoped, East ducked and the eight won the trick. I had eliminated one loser so I now turned my attention to the trump suit. If the outstanding trumps were 4-0, I would lose two tricks and if they were 2-2, I would lose only one trick. If they were 3-1, I would have to read it correctly. I led a low heart from dummy and East hesitated for just a moment before contributing the nine. If he held KJ9 I needed to play the 10 but if it was the singleton 9, I needed to rise with the ace and lead another toward the queen. Since he had length in the club suit my natural reaction would be to play him for shortness in the heart suit, but his hesitation did him in. I played the ten and wrapped up the game losing only 1 spade, 1 heart, and 1 diamond.

I won a few matchpoints and East took away some experience.

It's agreed that defense is difficult. But sometimes simply counting declarer's tricks will allow you to find your way.

BIDDING: I really won't comment on the bidding other than to say it worked.

Play: West led the ten of hearts won by the jack in dummy. Declarer had to bring in the diamond suit to have any chance so he played the king followed by a low one. When the queen popped up declarer could count 8 tricks so he next tried to sneak a spade trick by West. That defender was not falling for that so he rose with the ace and.....continued hearts. When the spade jack later dropped declarer had 11 tricks: 3 spades, 3 hearts, and 5 diamonds. It should have been clear to West that declarer had 3 hearts and 5 diamonds so the only hope was to win the ace of spades and switch to clubs.

By the way, these teams were playing for a national club championship. I will be gracious and not mention the name of their country.

A good declarer will avoid unnecessary finesses and will also try to make the opponents lead a suit for him.

BIDDING: South didn't like making a two-level overcall on a five-card suit but felt it was his best choice. North jumped to game to close the auction.

Play: West led the six of spades, East followed with the eight, and declarer won the king. Declarer saw he had a spade to lose along with four other possible losers: the king of hearts and three clubs. At trick two, declarer played the ace of diamonds and then trumped a diamond in dummy. The queen of hearts found the king on side so declarer now only had to worry about the club suit. He saw the answer...he ruffed his last diamond in dummy followed by a heart to the jack drawing the last trump. Next he led a low spade to dummy's seven and East was end-played. A spade return would establish a trick for declarer and if he instead led a club, declarer would win the third round.

Those declarers who played clubs themselves hoping East held both top honors were disappointed.

Overtricks are very important in a pairs event. Sometimes you can be sure of the location of the missing high cards but other times you must rely on your "table feel."

BIDDING: I was sitting South and my jump to 2NT showed a balanced hand with 18-19 high card points. My partner bid game.

Play: West led the six of spades and I won with the jack in dummy. I continued with a low heart to my king. Next I played a club to dummy's queen followed by a second heart. East rose with the ace and continued with the jack of hearts to my queen. I then played the king of clubs and was delighted to see the jack fall. I cashed the ace and king of spades discarding a diamond from dummy as East discarded the jack of diamonds on the last spade. I led my last club to dummy's ace and then played the ten of clubs discarding a low diamond. East was laboring over his discards so I was confident he held the king of diamonds. Here was the 3-card ending with the lead in dummy:

♥ 6 ♦ Q8
 ♥ J
 ♦ K10
 ♠ 3 ♦ A7

I led the six of hearts and discarded the spade from my hand. East had to lead away from his king of diamonds for my eleventh trick.

North took the direct route to game, but there are better ways to bid that hand. Most tournament players use 1♥-4♥ as a preempt (5+ Hearts and a weak hand) and use a conventional 2NT bid for the actual North hand, thereby giving N-S the opportunity to investigate slam if appropriate (which in this case it is not!)

Against 4♥ West led the ♣K, won by Dummy's Ace. A trump was lost to West's Ace, then West cashed two Clubs and exited safely with a Diamond. At this point Declarer could count nine top tricks. Do you see how she might conjure up a tenth?

Before Declarer commences any conjuring it will occur to her that West has shown up with ♥A and the ♣KQ, and that if he also held the ♠K he would no doubt have been heard from in the bidding. So, East has the ♠K.

At first glance it might appear that the only chance is for the Diamonds to break 3-3. What if one defender has four (or more) Diamonds and the ♠K? In that case could Declarer rattle off all her trumps and save the day with a squeeze? Not if it is East who holds the vital cards, because he will be discarding last and will pitch whatever suit Dummy pitches. So that squeeze won't work. And we know that West cannot hold the ♠K so clearly the squeeze won't work against him.

Does that mean that we are back to relying on 3-3 Diamonds? Actually, no! Declarer has a clever resource available. She leads the ♠Q from Dummy, East must cover, and Declarer's Ace wins the trick. Now the all-important Spade card is the Jack and there is room in West's hand for that. So, Declarer now runs the Hearts, hoping that Diamonds are 3-3 or that West is squeezed in Spades and Diamonds. 10 tricks in exotic fashion (that play is known as a Transfer Squeeze, so named because it transfers the Spade guard from one defender to the other).

In a team game or a money game, making the contract is all-important, and overtricks are merely a secondary consideration. But, in duplicate bridge, the method of scoring rewards overtricks and, as we'll see, that can influence the play of the hand.

First, try this 3NT in a team game, and focus entirely on making the contract. West leads ♠J, won in Dummy.

Declarer sees that four Diamond tricks will suffice to make the contract and, as a safety play against East having the singleton King, he might cash the ♦A first. That doesn't produce the King so Declarer next leads the ♦Q from Dummy, and when the dust clears, Declarer has 9 tricks. Routine stuff.

However, playing the same contract in a duplicate game, Declarer is more likely to try for an overtrick or two and, under the right circumstances, might even risk his contract in the process. As before, West leads the ♠J, won in Dummy. This time, Declarer says "Phooey!" to that safety play, and will try for five Diamond tricks. So, he crosses to the ♠A and finesses the ♦Q. But East is a devious fellow and fiendishly drops his Ten under Dummy's Queen. Now, Declarer can see 10 easy tricks in his future. He crosses to the ♥A, cashes the ♠K (otherwise it will be stranded), and runs the ♦8. But this loses to East's King, the defense runs the Spades, and it's down one in a cold contract!

Declarer's play was disastrous but, at duplicate scoring, not unreasonable. If he'd have made his overtrick he would have been rewarded with a good score. Too bad for him that the ♦K was offside, and East was tricky enough to duck the first Diamond, and Spades broke 5-3. It took three pieces of bad luck to bring about Declarer's downfall.

 1♠ Pass 3♠ Pass

Usually this column deals with play and defensive problems, but this week it's all about the bidding. Take a look at the South hand. What do you see? A hand that would open a Weak Two in Spades? A hand that would pass in first seat? Or a minimum 1♠ opening bid? Actually, it's none of the

Back in the day, we needed 13 HCP to open the bidding (or 12 if we were feeling frisky), but experienced players don't just count their points, they also consider their distribution. One tool for doing that is the Rule of 20 ... we add HCP to the length of our two longest suits ... if the total is 20 or more we have an opening bid. By this measure, South scores 11+6+3, and just manages to scrape up the magic number. So, let us agree that the South hand is worth a 1♠ opening bid.

North's 3♠ showed game-invitational values, saying "Bid game if you have something extra". Does South have said extras? Some might say "No!", on the grounds that the hand has only 11 HCP, and that it barely squeaked into opening territory on the Rule of 20 basis. Maybe so, but nonetheless the South hand does have extras. There is that singleton Heart ... the 6th trump ... and those lovely minor-suit Tens! Extras, indeed!

So, South cheerfully accepts the game invitation, West makes his opening lead (probably the ♥Q) and Dummy is revealed. It's a pretty poor specimen, what with the useless ♥K and not much cover in the minor suits. But, even so, it is good enough. The Diamond finesse loses, but the Club finesse wins and (thanks to the all-important ♠T) there are 10 tricks!

N-S Vulnerable
South West North East
 3NT Pass 6NT Pass
 Pass Pass

When he bid 6NT, could North be sure that E-W wouldn't cash two Diamonds on the go? Almost. East supposedly had seven Diamonds ... if South's stopper was the Ace or King then no problem ... and if South held Qxx then West probably couldn't lead the suit!

Against 6NT West led the ♥Q. Judging from what followed, one can only assume that this was the last board of the evening and that Declarer had a train to catch. He counted nine top tricks, realized that a couple of Diamond tricks would not get him up to 12, concluded that the Clubs had better be 3-2, and announced to the assembled throng: "Making slam if the Clubs are 3-2, down one if they are 4-1". When it turned out that Clubs were actually 5-0 the protagonists negotiated a settlement of down two.

If Declarer had not been reliant on public transport and had given more thought at Trick 1 then he might have seen that the contract had chances even if Clubs misbehaved. Our question is: At Trick 2, what is the only card from Dummy which enables Declarer to make his contract? That's right, Dummy must lead the Diamond Ten, being prepared to let it ride if East plays low. But say that East hops up with the Ace and fires back another Heart. Now, Declarer is up to 11 tricks. He takes his two Diamond tricks, then his Spades, and poor West is done for. He cannot retain control of Hearts and Clubs, something has to give, and a squeeze produces the 12th trick!

That Diamond play at Trick 2 gave Declarer an extra chance and could hardly cost. Even if the finesse improbably lost to West's singleton Queen, Declarer would still make his contract if the Clubs were 3-2.
